The image shows the interior of a large, conical wooden tipi. The structure is made of dark wooden poles and a light-colored fabric covering. The floor is covered with several large, cylindrical, textured cushions. A white text box is overlaid on the right side of the image, containing three paragraphs of text. The text is in a serif font and is enclosed in quotation marks. The background is a warm, golden-brown color, likely the fabric of the tipi. The lighting is soft and even, highlighting the texture of the wood and fabric.

The tipi has become an integral part of our outdoor learning programme and the more we use it, the more possibilities we find for future use.

It has been used by every class in our school, in addition to our Pre-School children, our Eco-Council, Forest School group and After-School Club.

Most importantly however, is that the children love the atmosphere as they enter the tipi – it makes them instantly excited and enthused about the lessons they are about to learn.
